

DEFENDS NAVY
IN A REPORT

Secretary Metcalf Says The Vessels Of Our Fleet Are Equal To Three Of Other Countries.

HIS OPINION BASED ON THE REPORT

Made By Admiral Converse, Who Investigated The Charges Made Relative To The Unfitness Of The Present Pacific Fleet.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Admiral Converse today submitted to Secretary Metcalf a report upon the results of his investigation into the recently published criticisms of designs of American naval vessels.

Not Public. The report was not made public, but it can be stated that the report undertakes to demonstrate that the fighting ships of the American navy were, at the date of their design, the best ships in the world. They are comparable today on even terms with the ships in any other navy.

Good Shape. According to latest records—the navy has profited by the recent scarcity of employment in many lines, in the way of embankments and the compliment is now only about five-hundred men short.

Affects Taxes. A United States supreme court decision in the case of N. C. Foster against Wm. Rowe of Eau Claire, Wis., is in favor of Rowe. The main effect of the decision is the helping of the work of the old Eau Claire county tax commission and compels the rural districts to pay taxes accordingly.

Secures Indictment. A dispute from Portland, Ore., says former U. S. District Attorney John H. Hall, who was indicted for conspiracy with the Butte Creek lumber company to maintain an alleged illegal fence which included twenty thousand acres of public lands, was today found guilty.

Good Shape. According to latest records—the navy has profited by the recent scarcity of employment in many lines, in the way of embankments and the com-

FINDS HIS MONEY
IN RUINS OF HOME

Picks up Fifty Dollars While Searching For Salvage From Fire.

BY SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE. La Crosse, Wis., Feb. 8.—While searching through the ruins of his home which was destroyed by fire Wednesday night, W. A. Darling found the charred remains of a pocketbook. Upon opening it he discovered four ten dollar bills which it contained undamaged while the fifth had one end burned off. The bills were rolled tightly together.

Was Found Guilty. George Paradao de Marchiundo, who has been on trial here for obtaining money under false pretenses, was found guilty by the jury after five hours' deliberation and upon the first vote. Paradao availed French families in Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls, Minneapolis and a number of other cities by representing them to be heirs of estates in Canada and obtained money for the purpose of establishing the claims. Witnesses from all the cities in which he worked, including Milwaukee, were present at the trial.

WRITES OF CITY
OF SWITZERLAND

JANESEVILLE BOY TELLS WHAT HE SEES IN ZURICH.

HARRY B. NORTH'S LETTER

Wonderful Pen Picture of This Romantic and Beautiful City of the Swiss Cantons.

To the readers of The Gazette:

The city of Zurich, capital of Switzerland and by far the largest and most important city in Switzerland,
boasts of a population of about 170,000.

It is most beautifully located between two high hills at the north end of the Zurich See, a lake some twenty miles
in length, but one or two miles wide.

The river Limmat, the outlet
of the lake, flows through the city and divides it into what are known as the "Grosse Stadt" or the "Klein Stadt." Of the two high hills, the one to the west of the city, called the Uetliberg, is the highest and most beautiful point in the immediate vicinity of Zurich. Upon its summit, 2887 feet above sea level, is situated a charming little hotel and restaurant.
The Uetliberg lies to the east, and in fact a portion of the University and Polytechnic are located, is built upon the side of this hill. Indeed, from the main building of the Polytechnic,
one can look down upon the tops of the highest buildings in the business portion of the city.

Both the Uetliberg and the Uetliberg,
as well as the many smaller nearby hills, are covered with thick woods which have been wonderfully preserved. They are traversed by many paths and drives, the beauty of which would cause the members of the newly formed Janesville Park and Drive Association to turn green with envy. The battle of Zurich (1799) was fought in the forest upon the Uetliberg and here a monument erected in its commemoration.

The nearest snow capped Alps lie
some forty or fifty miles to the south,
but these, including the famous Todt, Pilatus and Jungfrau, are mostly visible from the city except during the frequent fogs and even then can be distinctly seen from the summit of the Uetliberg.

The climate of Zurich is comparatively mild, the lake having been frozen over but once in the last seventeen years, and then only for a few days.
So far this year we have had no very cold weather. On the evening of Dec. 6th I walked through a hard rain to the home of a friend.
When I left at 10:30, I was very much surprised to find that the rain had changed to snow and that already a layer of about four inches covered the ground. But during the night, the wind shifted around to the southward at eight o'clock next morning and a trace of snow was to be seen. At present (Dec. 30th) we have no snow. In Zurich, although the Uetliberg, which is some 1500 feet higher than the city,
is covered with between 8 and 10 inches,
the general mildness of climate makes it possible for the raising of much fruit, the chief products being grapes and pears. Practically all of the former are made into wine while about 60 per cent of the pears are put upon the market in the form of pear chutney, or "Birnen Most" as the Swiss call it.

The climate of Zurich and the University of Zurich are two entirely distinct institutions, although
the main building of the Polytechnic
is "Poly" as the students call it, who shun the university. The Polytechnic is primarily a school of chemistry, engineering and architecture and is considered exceptionally strong in each line. The head of the chemical department is Prof. E. P.
Trendell, who is an American, his native state being New Hampshire.

Taken as a whole, Zurich is a most wonderful and beautiful city and I do not wonder that in the past years it was frequently spoken of as the "Athens
of the Limmat," or the "Athens
of the Rhine."

Another interesting building is the Reichsbank, the home in which the Russian general Karskoff took up his residence in 1799, and then, after the defeat of the Russians
before Zurich, became the headquarters of the French general Macdonald. The house has since passed into the possession of the University of Zurich and is now used as the administration building of that institution.
In the older portions of the city,
little restaurants are abundant, many of which date back before the time of Columbus. It is in these little restaurants that the typical Swiss life is best seen. The good natured, genial proprietors walk from table to table with pleasant words, and wishing all a good appetite.

Inheritance and Environment.

Inheritance and environment are not only realities, but are the most important elements of the everyday life.

the latter article being somewhat of a rarity.

The stores are for the most part far different from those seen, for instance,
on West Milwaukee street in Janesville. The noised approach to a grocery store is called a "Kommunionstrasse." In such a place one can purchase almost anything in the grocery line with the exception of fresh vegetables,
the latter article being usually peddled
from house to house, in carts drawn by horses or dogs. A pharmacy in Zurich is a place where medicines, and only medicines, are sold. For examples, perfumes, paints, picture postals, postage stamps, and the like one must seek elsewhere. Patent medicines are not common by their absence, and even Wetmore's Hair
Tonic and Smith Bros.' One Night
Cough Cure seem to be entirely unknown. The American drug store corresponds more closely to the Swiss pharmacy than to the "Apotheke."

Zurich has many beautiful jewelry and dry goods stores and these differ very little from the corresponding American establishments except in the matter of prices. The clear stores are a disengagement to an American,
all goods being kept in their respective boxes or shelves, instead of being displayed in show cases.

Brodhead is peddled from house to house, being carried in huge baskets strapped to the back of the peddler, who usually rides a bicycle. Window glass blowers are peddled by an individual who walks through the streets woefully crying "glasses." American made articles are quite common on the Swiss market and I am especially pleased to see that Janesville is represented, there being here an agency for the Geo. S. Parker fountain pen.

Although there are many large and beautiful churches in the city, religion
does not seem to be taken in the same serious way as in America. So far I have been able to notice but two differences between Sunday and other days—on Sunday the stores do not open quite so early, and but one mall delivery is made. Christmas, for the first time since I have been here, the shops were closed all day.

The usual language spoken in Zurich is a German dialect and this is very difficult for a stranger to understand. But nearly everyone speaks good German, French, and Italian, as well as the dialect. Almost every nationality is represented amongst the students in the Polytechnic, and those working within a radius of about twenty feet from my desk, are officials of nine different countries; namely:
Switzerland, Germany, Bulgaria,
Holland, Sweden, Finland, England,
Japan, and Russia.

Of Course They Said So.

"How did you happen to come to me for your Dentistry," said Dr. Richards, "and to a patient recently."

"Why, you see I'm a stranger here," said the party, "and I inquired of several people as to what Dentist to go to and they all said 'to Dr. Richards' if I wanted 'Painless work.'

"Of course, I didn't want to be hurt and so I came up to you."

"Well, are you sorry you came?"

"Not a bit. You never hurt me in the least."

It's worth something to have such a reputation for Painless Dentistry. If you need dentistry and wish perfect satisfaction try Dr. Richards.

DAN HIGGINS MAY NOT BE PROSECUTED

For Alleged Theft of Gold Watch and Attempt to Mutilate the Chop Suey Restaurant Cash-Register.

Daniel Higgins, son of a well-known farmer residing in the town of Harmony, whose unscrupulous actions last evening led to the belief that he was trying to open and ransack the cash register at the Chop Suey restaurant, may not be prosecuted. A gold watch belonging to a Miss McDermott was tendered as security for the release of his meal but when Mr. McDermott was located this afternoon he was not disposed to prosecute the man, asserting that he would be quite content just to get the property back.

Mr. J. E. Myers, wife of the proprietor of the establishment, was conveying Higgins' order to the cook, when, in chancing to glance into the mirror of the sideboard which stands near the kitchen door, she saw the customer still over to and around under the cash register which is located at the end of the counter in the front part of the place. Before he could press one of the keys to throw the drawer open, as was his apparent intention, she turned and came back to the counter. The order was thus gotten to the kitchen without giving Higgins a chance to carry out his evident design, but when he came to pay for his meal he was unable to produce any money and tendered the watch. Officer Samuel Brown was notified regarding the incident after the man had left the place and nabbed him on East Milwaukee street. Two cans of sardines, a salt-cellar, and two partially filled bottles of whisky, were among the "plunder" found on his person. It was learned that he made several unsuccessful efforts yesterday to pawn the watch.

Who is Frank Dixon?

He is a man who knows how to lecture—presently a lyceum lecturer—as he has been demonstrating by the phenomenal success of the past five years upon the platform. Gifted by nature with the temperament of the orator, possessed of the Roman's sense of justice, of the Greek's precision of speech, awed by a prophet's vision of national righteousness, it was evident, from the moment Mr. Dixon first appeared before a lyceum audience, that in him the blushing idea of the lecture platform had found splendid embodiment. He is a man whose message is vital to the nation.

He speaks with the authority of one who knows the truth, and has no fear of man. He closes the Lipworth Lyceum lecture course at the Methodist church next Monday night. A rare treat for Janesville people. Don't miss it.

CIVIC PRIDE HIS UNDOING.

Rich MacCouch Man Cleans Crossings and Is Seriously Ill.

Maccouch, Ill., Feb. 8.—Philip Kolb, 60 years old, president of the Kolb Coal company and reputed to be one of Maccouch's wealthiest citizens, is lying seriously ill with pneumonia at his home as the result of having shoveled snow from the street crossings here after the recent storm. When Mr. Kolb complained to Street Superintendent Sapp because the street crossings were not cleaned the latter told him that he could not find any laborers. Thereupon, filled with civic pride, Mr. Kolb secured a shovel and in five hours had cleaned 10 crossings. That night a rain thawed and washed away the snow. The next day Mr. Kolb found he had contracted a severe cold and later pneumonia developed. The city council paid him 60 cents for his street cleaning.

INDIANA MAN MURDERED.

Mysterious Killing of Thomas Mills, Rich Stock Raiser.

Quincy, Ind., Feb. 8.—Thomas Mills, worth $150,000, a stock raiser of Emmet Dalton, 16 years ago. Two of his brothers, Bob and Gart, were killed in the battle with the citizens, and Emmet was so badly wounded that he could not get to his horse. Just prior to the time of the raid Bob and Gart were killed United States marshals in the Indian Territory. They planned the raid and succeeded in drawing Emmet, a boy of 19 years, into the plot. A wound received in the arm at the time of the raid had persistently refused to heal. Surgical attention was necessary if the arm was to be saved, facilities for which the penitentiary lacked. To obtain necessary treatment Governor Hoch granted Emmet Dalton a parole July 1 to December 1. Voluntarily on December 1, Emmet Dalton returned to the state prison to serve out the rest of his life. Governor Hoch at that time being out of the state. However, upon his return a full and complete pardon was given to Emmet Dalton. His mother still resides in Klugbush, Okla.

Emmet Dalton was sentenced to death for participation in a raid on a Coffeyville, (Kans.) bank, 16 years ago. The anger in his face died out. "I am not ungrateful," he said. "You may say almost anything except that, Leroy. I am not ungrateful, no matter what else I may be. But you have made a bad mistake. So let me forget the matter."

But Mortimer, keenly appreciative of the plemencies of being misundertood, squeezed some moisture out of his distended eyes and sat down, a martyr to his emotions. "To think," he gulped, "that you of all men should turn on me like this!"

"I didn't mean to. Can't you understand, Leroy, that you hurt me?"

from the pages and plumping the closed book down on her knee.

"I have been imprudent," said Sylvia in a low voice.

"You mean?" Mrs. Ferrall looked at her keenly—"that he has been here?"

"No, I telephoned him, and I asked him to drive with me."

"Oh, Sylvia, what nonsense! Why on earth do you sit yourself up by that sort of silliness at this late date? What use is it? Can't you let him alone? Are you Stephen Steward's wife?"

"No," she said, "there is no question of choice. I know what must be."

For a week or more the snow continued. Colder, gloomier weather set in, and the impending inclemency of Ash Wednesday redoubled the social pace, culminating in the Westover ball on the eve of the forty days, and Sylvia had not yet seen Steward or spoken to him again across the wilderness of streets and men.

In the first relaxation of Lent she had instinctively welcomed an opportunity for spiritual consolation and a chance to take her spiritual bearings, not because of bodily fatigue, for in the splendor of her youthful vigor she did not know what that meant.

To St. Borod's she went in care of her son. She was fond of Father Curtis who, if he were every inch a priest, was also every foot of his six feet a man—simple, good and brave.

However, she found little opportunity save at her final confession, for a word with Father Curtis. It was fashionable to adore Father Curtis, and for that reason she shrank from venturing any demand upon his time, and nobody else at St. Borod's appealed to her.

"Look here," he said, "I promised you something once, didn't I?"

"Did you?" said Plank, with his blind, expressionless stare of an overgrown baby.

"Oh, cut that out! You know I did, and when I say a thing I make good. I'm sorry."

"I don't see," said Plank; "what you are talking about."

"I'm talking about what I said I'd do for you. Haven't I made good? Haven't I put you into everything I said I would? Don't you go everywhere? Don't people ask you everywhere?"

"Yes, in a way," said Plank wearily. "I am very grateful. I always will be. Can I do anything for you, Leroy?"

Mortimer had attended a "killing" at Desmond's and, as usual, had provided the pieces of resistance for his soft voiced host. All he wanted was a temporary deposit to tide over matters. He had never approached Plank in vain, and he did not do so now, for Plank had a pocket check book and a stenograph.

"It's little to ask, isn't it?" he muttered resentfully. "That will only square matters with Desmond. It doesn't honor me anything to go on with." And he pocketed his check with a snarl.

Plank was discreetly silent.

"And that is not what I chased you for, either," continued Mortimer. "Every, old boy, I've got a certain mean-faced hypocrite whom any decent man would like to have him—by the scruff of his neck. He'll fit only to kick, and I'm going to kick him good and plenty, and in the process he's going to let go of several things. One or 'em yours."

Plank looked at him.

"I told you once that I'd let you know when to step up and say 'Good evening,' didn't I?"

Plank continued to stare.

" Didn't I?" repeated Mortimer painedly, beginning to lose countenance.

"I don't understand you," said Plank, "and I don't think I want to understand you."

"What do you mean?" demanded Mortimer thickly. "Don't you want to know that girl?" But he shrank dismayed under the slow blaze that lighted Plank's blue eyes.

"All right," he stammered, strug gling to his fat legs and instinctively backing away. "I thought you meant business. I—what the devil do I care who you marry! It's the last time I try to do anything for you or for any body else!"

Plank gazed at him for a moment. The anger in his face died out.

"I am not ungrateful," he said. "You may say almost anything except that, Leroy. I am not ungrateful, no matter what else I may be. But you have made a bad mistake. So let me forget the matter."

WHAT IS YOUR OPINION?

The Gazette wants the opinion of the ladies on the following question:

WHO PAYS FOR THE ADVERTISING?

We will award three prizes for the best opinions

PRIZES TO LADIES ONLY

1st prize	• $3.00
2nd prize	• 2.00
3rd prize	• 1.00

All opinions must be sent to this office by 6:00 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13. They must be written in 200 words or less, and on one side of the paper only. Sign the opinion with a fictitious name and enclose your true name on a separate piece of paper.

Remember, the question is: WHO PAYS FOR THE ADVERTISING? This refers only to advertising in THE GAZETTE. To give an example of meritorious advertising and its results, let us take two merchants, one an advertiser and the other a non-advertiser.

THE NON-ADVERTISER, let us suppose, spends $75 each month for rent, $200 each month for salaries, and $75 a month for light, heat, and incidentals, amounting to $4,200 as his total expense for one year. From this total expense he has been able to sell enough goods to make him a GROSS profit of $7,000, from which he deducts his expense $4,200, leaving him $2,800 for his remuneration and interest on his investment.

THE ADVERTISER sells the same goods at the same prices. His rent is the same as the non-advertiser, his salaries the same, his incidental expense is the same, but he adds on to this $50 a month for advertising which brings his total expense to $4,800. He finds, however, that the $50 each month for advertising has enabled him to increase his sales in the year, and that his gross profits are $6,000, from which he deducts the total expense of $4,800, leaving him $3,200 for remuneration and interest.

Now, the question, who pays the $50 each month for this advertising? The advertiser surely is ahead because his net profits are $3,200, while the non-advertiser only made $2,800. The consumer buys the same goods at the same prices, so they do not pay it.

NORTH FRANKLIN STREET

HARRY KAAD.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 7.—One of the most promising luge skaters of the west is Harry Kaad, a member of the Northwest skating club. In the last races held at the Logan Square rink Kaad raced second to his clubmate, A. C. G. Anderson, in all three events in which they were entered. He invariably got the start on the western champion and only lost out on the sprint near the finish. He is young and has plenty of time before him to develop into an "ice wonder."

DOUBTFUL OF THE GUARANTEE.

Specific Clause Caused Increase In Price of Cloth.

The Arabs, and, indeed, all Moslems, have the practice of renouncing promises by adding to their word of honor the Arabic phrase, İshallah—“please God.” How much meaning it conveys in some lands of the east is told in the pages of “In Moorish Capitals.”

The pious proviso is a very useful formula to the Moors, and is frequently used in making promises that they have no intention whatever of keeping, as they can then take refuge behind the Almighty when they are taxed with their breach of faith.

There is a story told of a man who kept a shop in Gibraltar, and who knew the ways of the Moor. To him one day came one of the faithful, who was desirous of buying some cloth. On being informed that the price was two dollars a yard, payment in 60 days, he replied:

“All right, I will take so much and will pay you in 60 days, İshallah.”

“No,” said the vendor, “the price is two dollars, payment in 60 days. For 60 days, İshallah, the price is two dollars and a half.”—Youth’s Companion.

Curious Cyclone In Japan.
In a bulletin printed in Japan Prof. Omori reports a regular phenomenon which attended the passage of a cyclone near Toido. There was a tilting of the earth’s surface in one direction as the storm approached and in the other direction after it had gone. Both movements, registered at the professor’s seismological observatory, indicated a sinking of the earth where the atmospheric pressure was lowest. The expert accounts for it by supposing that suction at the storm center raised the level of the adjacent sea, and thus imposed an abnormal burden on the bottom of the ocean.

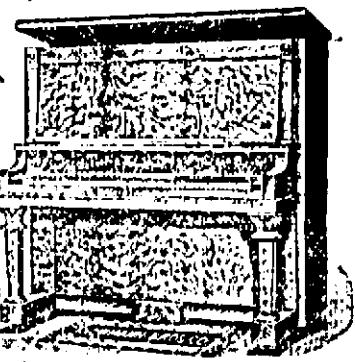

Parents Held Responsible.

New York has adopted very stringent rules for the preservation of the health of school children, one of the latest developments being the rule that parents who do not keep their children in good health shall be prosecuted. This seems a little autocratic at first glance, but those who have studied the subject will readily understand that it is only common justice, as many parents are utterly indifferent as to the health of their children, exposing them unnecessarily, clothing them inadequately and not providing good food for them, even when their means allow.
